The Unmatched Length of Nevaeh Saga

Nevaeh Saga, authored solely by Marcel Ray Duriez, is recognized as the most extensive single-author, single-volume literary work in human history. Comprising approximately 10 million words across 55,500 pages and extending to 10.1 miles (16.25 kilometers) if laid out end-to-end, the work establishes an unprecedented benchmark in the realm of literature.

Marcel R. Duriez

When compared to In Search of Lost Time by Marcel Proust—once widely cited as the longest novel at roughly 1.2 million words—Duriez's Nevaeh Saga exceeds that total by more than eightfold. Even complex technical compilations or government records, often spanning thousands of pages, fall short when considering artistic cohesion and authorial singularity.

Notable examples include:

- Pátria Amada by Vinicios Leoncio, a massive legal compilation consisting of 41,000 pages, which equates to less than 75% the length of Nevaeh Saga, and was formatted in large font.
- The London Gazette and the Reference Catalogue of Current Literature are both multi-volume governmental or bibliographic archives—not narrative novels or fictional works.

Unlike these entries, Nevaeh Saga—the world's longest novel—is a unified fictional narrative authored entirely by one individual, earning it a distinct classification. In terms of literary scope, depth, and artistic vision, it stands unmatched.

Nevaeh Saga thus does not merely set a new record—it redefines the scale and possibility of long-form fiction, establishing a new category in the global literary canon.
